The Cotillion.
One of the most charming entertainments of the week was the Cotillion given last evening by the Honolulu School for Boys. The spacious mess room was transformed into a perfect bower of loveliness. The walls and ceiling were banked with greens while numerous great baskets filled with dainty paper flowers in pink and yellow intermingled with greens were hung at intervals from overhead. From these baskets were draped long, flowing streamers of rainbow-colored tulle. The lights covered with pretty paper flowers cast a subdued glow over all and enhanced, if such a thing were possible, the romantic beauty of the scene.

Mr. Young Corbthers, of the faculty, with the student officers of the school, who were all in natty white uniforms, received the guests. The evening's entertainment opened with several dances in which students and guests both took part. One could not help noticing the surprising poise of the boys as they went in and out through the crowd, making their guests at home and showing them every courtesy. They certainly made ideal hosts and in some of the younger boys their self-possession did seem remarkable.

The first number on the program was a little dance in Kate Greenaway costumes. Little Kathleen Stone, daughter of Mrs. Stone, the matron of the school, looked very sweet in her tiny, short-sleeved frock and so thought the six little men in their cunning Kate Greenaway suits, who came out to woo her with their quaint old-fashioned nosegay. At last, when five of them paired off with her and walked away, leaving little "Buddy" Corbaley weeping all by himself, the audience broke into the most enthusiastic applause, recalling them again and again. Those who took part in this little act were Kathleen Stone, Elliott Goss, Wilson Boyd, Julian Judd, Richard Parker, Robert Jenner, and Robert Corbaley, Jr.

The next number was a clever little "Gypsy dance" by Gordon Wav and Theodore Seales, which was followed by a popular "Russian Dance" by Ivan Johnson and Henry Judd.

After several more general dances, the cotillion was started, the boys and girls both taking part. The first favors were baskets filled with flowers and bedecked with clouds of tulle and bouillonieres; the next were graceful white stiffs bearing a great bow of tulle, while the third were pretty paper balloons. Then a long white fence with a rail, all wreathed in roses, was carried to the center of the room separating the ladies and gentlemen. Each gentleman stepped up to the gate, which was opened by his partner, who allowed him to pass through and then they danced away.

Next, they called at the postoffice, which was a quaint little white house decorated with paper flowers and lights. Here they received halves of cards which they matched for their last partners.

Refreshments were served in the quaintest way imaginable. One of the Kate Greenaway boys came in pushing a tiny cart piled high with little flower pots out of which sweet peas and pansies were growing. On closer observation, however, it was found that the sweetpeas and pansies were growing out of delicious ice cream. The other five Kate Greenaway boys passed the cake.

A vast amount of credit is due Mr. Corbthers for the extraordinary success of this entertainment, as he accomplished it all practically unaided. He planned it, drilled the boys, and put up the decorations himself and is to be congratulated on the success of his efforts.

Among those invited to be present were: Governor L. E. Pinkham, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Swanzy, Miss Rosemond Swanzy, Mrs. Faxon Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit Wilder, Mrs. Henry Waterhouse, Miss Nora Sturgeson, Miss Helen Alexander, Lieut. N. W. Mrs. W. P. McBride, who is the mother of Mrs. B. O. Mahaffey, was hostess at a most enjoyable dinner party last Tuesday evening at the Rathskellar. The color scheme for the table was yellow, the decorations being extremely attractive. Covers were placed for Capt. and Mrs. Paul B. Melone, Capt. and Mrs. Ralph B. Lister, Capt. and Mrs. E. K. Massee, Capt. and Mrs. B. O. Mahaffey and Mrs. McBride.

Mischa Elman's Concert.

It seems rather strange that two of the biggest events of some time past should both have occurred on Thursday evening. But it was so, and society folk were divided between Miss Young's entertainment and Mr. Elman's concert.

This concert was one of the best things which Honolulu people have had the opportunity of witnessing for some time. Mr. Elman is a true genius and plays with all the power of full and complete appreciation and understanding of music. Every number of his splendid program was enjoyed, and met with a most enthusiastic response in his audience.

Mr. Elman was cleverly assisted by Mr. Percy B. Kahn, who played his piano accompaniments in a very artistic manner.

The great violinist is offering a most promising program for tonight and a record attendance is expected.

Among those who were noticed in Thursday evening's audience were: Mr. and Mrs. L. Tenney Peck, Mrs. Sara Newcomb, Mr. E. A. P. Newcomb, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Ingalls, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wall, Dr. and Mrs. H. Bicknell, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Wichman, Miss Eloise Wichman, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Swanzy, Miss Nora Swanzy, Miss Rosemond Swanzy, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac M. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Gurry, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. J. S. B. Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Keller, Miss Murie Howatt, Mr. Theodore Cooke, Mr. John Gifford, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hall, Miss Margaret Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Goodale, Canon and Mrs. Ault and many others.

Delicatessen Sale.

The Catholic Ladies' Aid Society are planning a delicatessen sale to take place on the first Saturday in June. The funds derived from the same will go to help the poor and especially the Kailhi orphanage. This latter institution receives no public assistance and as it has forty-two little children entrusted to its fold any assistance which might be offered it is greatly appreciated.

The ladies are planning a most delicious lot of good things for the sale; they will have roast ducks and chickens, meat loaf, breads of all kinds, doughnuts, cookies, cream puffs, cakes, pies, jams and jellies, and delicious home-made candy. There will also be a luau table at which delicious lauau will be sold.

The ladies plan to make a big success of the affair and have begun the work of planning their contributions already.

Col. and Mrs. Reynolds' Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick P. Reynolds entertained at a charming dinner on Thursday evening in honor of Gen. and Mrs. William H. Carter. The table was most artistically decorated with phlox of different colors, which with the pink-shaded lights made a very attractive scene. Covers were laid for Gen. and Mrs. Carter, Dr. and Mrs. Adams, Capt. and Mrs. R. M. Cutts, Col. and Mrs. J. B. McDonald, Miss Lila McDonald, Col. William Rafferty, Mrs. Fuller, Mr. George Fuller, and Col. and Mrs. Reynolds.

Church Social.

A very pleasant social meeting was held on Thursday evening in the parlors of Central Union church, and those who were present heartily enjoyed the excellent program which was presented under the direction of Mrs. C. F. Schmutzler of Punahou.

The first number on the program was a piano solo, the Coleridge-Taylor "Characteristic Waltzes," well rendered by Miss Florence Campbell. The next was a reading from one of Lady Gregory's Irish playlets, "The Workhouse Ward," by Miss Thelma Murphy, John O'Dowda, and Miss Ruth Soper.

Two songs, "Oh, Were My Love Yon Red, Red Rose," by Robert Burns, and "The Little Red Lark," by Tom Moore were delightfully sung by Miss Helen Grace Cadwell, who has a most pleasing voice.

Mr. Midkiff of the Punahou faculty next gave as a reading "When Melinda Sings," by Paul Laurence Dunbar. Mr. Midkiff has a well-modulated voice and he delivered the selection in a highly artistic manner, winning the enthusiastic applause of the audience. "Rolling Down to Rio" and "The Bandolero" were splendidly sung by Dr. S. D. Barnes, and the evening's entertainment closed with the serving of refreshments.
